DDT And Chemical Cousins Under Attack Of Scientist

By DELOS SMITH
United Press Science Editor
NEW YORK (AP)—The insecticide, DDT, and its ever more poisonous chemical cousins were attacked today on a charge of being the roots of much evil now afflicting man and beast.

The prosecutor was Dr. Morton S. Biskind, Westport, Conn., who has had the alleged culprits under surveillance since 1948.

The court was the current issue of the American Journal of Digestive Diseases. The jury will have to be the physicians who will examine his evidence, together with attached 119 citations of scientific findings.

DDT came in general contacts with people in 1945. Since then, Dr. Biskind said, "there have been a number of curious changes in the incidence of certain ailments and the development of new syndromes groups of symptoms which spell out diseases never before observed. A most significant feature of this situation is that both man and all his domestic animals have simultaneously been affected."

These ailments he listed for man as: Hepatitis, which is inflammation of the liver; polio; disorders of the heart and arteries and of the gastro-intestinal tract; cancer; unusual forms of pneumonia; Renal failure-plasma, a blinding disease of premature born infants; "excessive fatigability and muscular weakness" neuro-psychiatric symptoms.

For beasts he listed these: Hyperkeratosis or "X disease" of cattle; an increased incidence of hoof and mouth disease; vesicular exanthema of horses; "blue tongue," "scrapie" and "cervical disease" of sheep; Newcastle disease of chickens; "highly fatal hepatitis X" and "hard pad disease" of dogs.

Not one of these, except hoof and mouth disease, is mentioned in the Department of Agriculture's handbook, "Diseases of Domestic Animals," published in 1942.

This coincidence alone should have been sufficient to cause a suspicion that the new diseases were not natural but were caused by something new. Dr. Biskind said, "The new factor is not far to seek."

The factor, he continued, is DDT and its family. When DDT was released for general use "an immense background of toxicologic investigations had already shown beyond doubt that this compound was dangerous for all animal life from insects to mammals." But it was released just

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Soviet Delegate Andrei Vishinsky repeated in the General Assembly Thursday that he is here to American life. Commenting on why the United States wanted military bases in Europe, he said:

"It is so American to want to fight or to want to be in the Soviet Union."

IMPATIENT
KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP)—Impatience out Doris Allen, 19, in jail for Thanksgiving.

PICKLE AWARD
CHICAGO (AP)—Singer Julius La Rosa, who lost his television job with Arthur Godfrey, and then became a headliner, has won an award from the National Pickle Packers Association—a hand-carved wooden pickle for the "Man who got into and out of the pickles in 1953."

Letter To Editor

Editor Ledger-Times
Murray, Ky.

Dear Sir: Concerning the Harry Truman-Dexter White affair. It is not difficult to understand why Truman does not want to testify in this case. It is not because he feels he would cast a shadow on the American people by his testifying. The reason is that he has gotten himself in the middle of a mess and has crossed himself so many times, not only before his radio address, but in his address, that he is simply afraid to face questioners. In earlier reports he stated that as soon as it was discovered that White was a spy he (Truman) fired him. He retracted this statement for simple reason that records show that White was not fired but resigned. Then he tried to claim that he asked White to resign. This could not hold for on April 7th, 1947, just seven days after White's resignation, Truman wrote White the warmest personal letter, praising him greatly on his "ceaseless efforts," "you have filled with distinction," "I wish you the very best luck and will feel free to call upon you from time to time, etc."

He also crossed himself completely in his radio address. In one breath he called Atty. Gen. Brownell a liar because Brownell had stated that "White was known to be Communist spy by the very people who appointed him, etc." In the next breath he admitted this by saying "White was kept in the Service to keep from upsetting the F.B.I. inquiry. If Truman is as honest and loyal as he says he is, he would volunteer before the Senate Subcommittee concerning his acts while President, especially in such momentous importance. His refusing to do so is too much like the Communist in hiding behind the fifth amendment to the constitution. His refusing condemns him."

Now about the New York trial of White. Truman tried to make capital out of the fact that the jury failed to indict him because the evidence was not sufficient to indict. To indict for treason the jury would have to have evidence that the party was caught with secret documents on his person and also caught passing them to a confederate. Such evidence is not necessary to refuse to hire or to fire a person who is disloyal to the government.

I would not say that Truman appointed disloyal individuals for the purpose of endangering our security but his blindness to the threat of Communism amounts to that, and he still puts himself in the position of an Untouchable.

Big Bully—I will do just as I please and if you criticize I will "cuss" you out.

The evidence shows that Truman appointed White three months after he (Truman) had been informed by the FBI of the disloyalty of White, and the day before White was confirmed by the Senate the FBI informed Truman that White was a Communist spy. Also on same day he had a conference with Atty. Gen. Tom C. Clark and Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson who advised him to withdraw White's name but Truman took it upon himself to ignore their plea and let the appointment go through. Also Truman's statement that White was given this appointment so he could be under surveillance was flatly denied by Hoover of the FBI, who stated that it was a distinct hindrance.

When all is said and done it still remains a fact that during Truman's administration our national capital was honey-combed with Russian spies, Communists and fellow travelers. Because of this the Russians got hold of our most vital military secrets including the atom bomb and the H-bomb. It will be remembered that Truman's appointees were invariably known to be shaded with Communist principals to the extent (Continued on page three)

FFA Campers Enjoy Sports

All's not work at the State FFA Leadership Training Center located at Hardinsburg, Kentucky. Wholesome, organized recreation takes up part of each day. Swimming in the Camp's new $40,000 swimming pool, which was built by Future Farmers provides a welcome break in the day's activities.

Campers also enjoy softball, volleyball, basketball, shuffleboard, horseshoes, ping pong, and other games.

This Week's Balance Sheet In The Hot And Cold War

By PERL NEWSOM
United Press Foreign News Editor

The week's balance sheet between the good and bad news in the hot and cold war:

The Good

1. Around the world, Americans took time out from the hot and cold war to observe Thanksgiving—the day first observed by the Pilgrim fathers and recognized as a national institution by George Washington. Social church services commemorated the day, and for most GIs, wherever they were, it was the traditional feast of turkey with all the fixings. In Korea, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor asked the soldiers to give moral thanks to those who had died so that this day in Korea might be peaceful. Even the 22 American war prisoners who have said they would prefer to stay with the Reds had a Thanksgiving Day dinner. There was chicken supplied by the Reds.

2. Meanwhile, a break seemed to come in the long-drawn-out struggle to remove a time and place for the political conference to decide Korea's future. The Reds, after five weeks of stalling, suddenly indicated over Red China's radio that they were anxious to start the conference before January 30, possibly because that is the time limit set for neutral custody of war prisoners who have rejected "come home" pleas.

3. Director of Foreign Operations Harold Stassen advised Congress that considerable reductions can be made in the fiscal year starting July 1 in both military and economic aid to Europe. Stassen did not estimate the size of the cut in aid appropriations which this year, for Western Europe, totaled $2,250,000,000. Countries which still will need considerable help, he said, are France, Spain, Greece and Turkey.

The Bad

1. Crisis gripped the French government, threatening not only the life of Premier Joseph Laniel, Cabinet but the success of the forthcoming Bermuda conference of the "Big Three" as well. The issue arose over what to do about the French mandate in Syria and Lebanon. The French could not attend because of the crisis at home, other delegates could do little more than talk either about the European army or the dream of federating Europe. Meanwhile, the best hope seemed to lie in the actions of individual nations—such as Belgium whose lower house voted approval of the European army, joining West Germany and Holland.

No less important than European unity is unity among non-Communist nations of the Far East. Prime examples are Japan and Korea. But so far apart are the two that they cannot even agree on fishing rights, let alone set an diplomatic and economic agenda. This week's Korean Rhee released approximately 400 arrested Japanese fishermen, but stubbornly continued to insist that Korean territorial waters extend 60 miles offshore.

Resolution To Be Brought Before World Parliament

By BRUCE W. MUNN
United Press Staff Correspondent

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The United States today prepared a resolution condemning Communist atrocities in Korea for presentation Monday in the United Nations.

The resolution will omit any request for an investigation, American officials said, because the evidence builds an "irrefutable case" against Communist China and North Korea.

Britain, France, Australia and Turkey will join the United States in putting the resolution before the world parliament.

A U.S. spokesman said strong opposition would obviously prevent any investigation commission from penetrating the Bamboo Curtain.

The U.S. charges that Communists tortured and killed tens of thousands of U.N. troops and civilians, including many Americans, will be presented directly to the General Assembly for debate.

The United States already has presented to the United Nations an inch-thick compilation of evidence of the atrocities, amplifying details first announced by the Pentagon last month.

The Army's report said 57,599 cases of Red atrocities had been reported in Korea, of which 29,815 were considered "probable." It said 10,032 bodies of victims had been recovered and 216 survivors located.

The U.S. resolution will recall that the Geneva conventions of 1929 and 1949 required humane treatment of prisoners and civilians in time of war.

In the light of those conventions, informants said, it will ask the assembly to "condemn atrocious acts" against such persons and demand specifically that the U.N. "express its grave concern" regarding the atrocities committed by the North Korean and Chinese Reds.

The United States, a well-placed source said, "is seeking to arouse the conscience of the world to the fact that the North Korean and Chinese Communist forces have employed inhuman practices."

Junior Play Cast Selected

The Junior Class of Murray High has selected their annual Junior play and their play cast. The play this year will be held December 4 and is entitled "Going Places." It is a three act comedy about the Maxwell family who can't decide where to go on their summer vacation.

You can imagine the trouble they get into when the entire family is planning to go somewhere different. Daughter Betty Lou is longing to visit Hollywood; son Wilbur is raring to see some big league ball; daughter Connie wants to go to grandmother's; and pop is already visualizing bottling bass flopping amid the cool waters at the mountains.

The cast will be made up of the following students:

Don Overby, Bob Overby, Joyce McCare, Lita Tucker, Jane Shell, Billy Dale Outland, Linda Tucker, Doris Jewell, Ray Billington, A. W. Simmons, Peggy Bynum, Shirley Chiles, Jerry Roberts.

AGAINST LAW

COOSE BAY, Ore. (AP)—Two unemployed men from Nebraska and Alabama said today they did not know that cave-dwelling in state parks was against the law.

State police evicted them from their cave quarters in a cave in Coon Head State Park. They had outfitted the cave with a stove, beds, groceries and a supply of matches.

Weather

KENTUCKY • Mostly sunny west portion today, high 42 to 48. Clear and colder tonight, low 20 to 26. Sunday cloudy and warmer, with some chance of rain west portion.

Tobacco Market Opens In Louisville

LOUISVILLE (AP)—Tobacco was being brought to Kentucky warehouses in increasing amounts today in preparation for the beginning of the 1953 burley auction season, which begins Monday.

Market towns throughout Kentucky have begun to take on the acrid aroma of the state's principal agricultural product, although state warehouses will not be as full as usual when the single-chant of the auctioneer begins Monday.

The drought, which depleted many Kentucky crops, including tobacco, also was responsible for delaying stripping.

Stripping is progressing at a fevered pace all over the state now, however, as cooler weather and increased humidity made the leaf soft and pliable.

Dry weather caused tobacco to be brittle and hard to handle while being pressed for market.

The crop in the eighth state burley-belt this year will total 575,000,000 pounds, according to a U.S. Department of Agriculture press-season estimate. Kentucky will account for nearly three-fourths of this total. This year's crop, while large, will be 95,000,000 pounds less than last year's total of approximately 670,000,000 pounds sold throughout the eight state areas. The crop also will be exceeded by the 1946 and 1951 crops.

Several factors, including reduced acreage allotments and the prolonged drought, were responsible for the reduction in this year's production.

The crop also is expected to be of a lower quality than that of past years because of the drought. It will be principally a thin smoke-type leaf usually popular with buyers.

Federal price support levels for burley have been set at 46.5 percent on the 1953 crop—a 6 percent drop from last year's figure.

The total 1953 tobacco crop including dark air-cured, fire-cured and other types in addition to burley was expected to exceed 2,000,000,000 pounds.

Sales begin at most state warehouses Monday and will be held on a four-hour daily basis for the first two weeks. After that, auctions will continue for 4 1/2 hours each day until Dec. 18, when all markets halt for the Christmas holidays.

Sales will resume Jan. 4 on a four-hour a day basis.

Markets at Lexington, Mount Sterling, Louisville, Shelbyville and elsewhere report offerings being brought in at a steady pace, but all expect to have much room space still showing by opening day.

William Clay Mount Sterling, said the situation caused by slow deliveries is not unfortunate. "It's rather healthy," he said. "There's absolutely nothing to indicate the markets over the state will run out of tobacco."

It means the farmers will sell their consignments much faster than has been the case in previous years. Normally many farmers wait up to two weeks to sell their leaf after bringing it to a sales floor.

"McCARTHYISM" AND "TRUMANISM"

Senator Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin may not have had as large an audience over a combined radio-
 television network this week as former President Harry
 S. Truman had a week ago, but it was probably nearly
 as large.

Many Americans wanted to hear what he had to say about the new dictionary word Truman introduced—
 "McCarthyism"—but we believe most of them were astonished to learn where it originated.

Truman defined the word as "corruption of truth, the abandonment of due process of law, the use of the
 big lie."

Senator McCarthy said last night the definition was not originated by Truman. It was first printed in the Daily Worker, New York Communist newspaper, and McCarthy said Truman used the Daily Worker definition, "word for word, comma for comma."

Millions of Americans who do not admire McCarthy
 will probably readily admit since seeing him on television, or hearing him on radio, that they believe in what he stands for. And some will confess they have been too liberal in their attitude towards Communists, or national leaders who have been "blind" so long as to its threat to our security.

We should never forget that when Truman so suddenly became President we were trying our dead level best
 to carry on a tight partnership with Soviet Russia. He did not form the partnership. He was merely trying to carry on where the late Franklin D. Roosevelt left off.

Since the partnership has proven such a monumental
 mistake all of us have leaned over backward to keep from placing the blame where it properly belongs. Because Roosevelt is dead and Truman is still alive we are inclined to blame Truman and excuse Roosevelt.

McCarthy says, and we think most folks believe, Truman was really "blind" to the risk involved when he promoted Harry Dexter White to a high office, but we would not forget that he "inherited" White, and all the
 other alleged Russian spies mentioned in FBI reports,
 and most of the 1,500 fired by Eisenhower since last
 January as loyalty risks.

We have more respect for President Eisenhower than ever for wanting to "clean up the Washington mess" as quietly as possible, but we can't help but agree with McCarthy in his determined effort to inform the public
 on Communist infiltration in government during the Truman Administration. It's the only way to avoid repetition of past mistakes.

Also we quite agree with the Wisconsin Senator when
 he says Communist infiltration in government during the Truman administration will be the Number One issue in
 the 1954 Congressional campaigns, regardless of how
 badly President Eisenhower wants it to be a closed chaper in our history before then, and regardless of how loudly Adlai Stevenson denounces the issue as "waving
 the red flag."

The defeated candidate introduced the "red flag" slogan
 in Atlanta and if McCarthy, and other radical Republicans, are as good at politics as Stevenson and Truman they will make that slogan react next year like
 Truman's "red herring" reacted last fall.

TODAY'S SPORTS PARADE

By OSCAR TRALEY
 United Press Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 28. (AP)—
 It is truly an all-American game
 as Army and Navy go at it today
 in Municipal Stadium but this
 annual football classic really belongs in Pennsylvania.

The Cadets and Midships who will battle it out hail from 39 states and the territory of Alaska—but the top total in blue and gray is the 15 footballers from Billy Penn's backfield.

The reason, I think, New York is second with 12 and California is third with 9—but little old New Jersey, just across the Delaware
 River, has 8 sons in the fray.

Army is a 1-point favorite, according to the boys in the back-
 room, but you can't sell that sort
 of point propaganda at West Point
 or Annapolis. This is the kind of a game which breeds the spirit

 seen from Bunker Hill to Incheon or from the days of the Red Home-
 me Richard to the Coral Sea.

Navy always seems to get "up"
 higher than Army for this one.
 Proof of that is the games of 1949
 and 1950. In 1949, unbeaten Army was held to a 21-21 tie with Navy on the Army 2-yard line as
 the battle ended. In the second,
 unbeaten Army was flattened by the Midships, 14-2.

"The reason, I think," says Col.
 Jim Schwank, Army graduate
 manager of athletics, "is that
 Navy starts getting ready for us
 in August."

Today's game is the 54th in a series that began in 1893. Army
 has won 27 and Navy has taken
 22. Four battles have ended in ties.

Navy guard Steve Fisenbauer
 has been getting most of the attention in the Navy line but, according to Army scouts, the unsung heroes are "Jack Ma Perkins, a tackle from Layton, Utah, and tackle
 Hugh Webster of Bremerton
 Wash.

On the other hand, in the Army line most of the rays have been for end Bob Mischak while Navy
 scouts say that the best man probably is center Bob Farris, a 200-
 pound 6-footer from Montgomery, Ala.

Carney Leslie, who coaches the Army line for Cadet Head Coach
 Earl Red Blaik, probably finds
 himself a man divided as time approaches for the kickoff. During World War II the former University of Kentucky line coach was a lieutenant commander in the Navy.

And if you don't think the
 coaches are upset as this game

gets underway, consider the case
 of Army backfield coach, Vincent
 Lombardi. End Coach Paul Amen
 drove him home from practice one
 night early during the weekend,
 when Amen stopped his car in
 front of Lombardi's quarters.
 Vince leaned over and abstractedly
 kissed Amen on the cheek.
 "What goes on here?" asked the
 startled Amen.
 "Excuse me," blurted the red-
 faced Lombardi, "I thought you
 were my wife!"
 Who's excited?

Mr. Peepers Considered Top Eligible

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press Hollywood Writer

HOLLYWOOD — Margie Connelly, a pet blonde stenographer, believes that meek males do better than all right for themselves with the feminine population.

She bawls her belief with evidence gleaned as Southern California president of the Mr. Peepers Fan Club.

"It's definitely not true that only men with bulging muscles command the cream of the feminine crop," she said today. "Muscles belong in a prize ring or as part of a life guards equipment. Most women want their men to be mild-mannered and even shy. It's the maternal instinct."

Miss Connelly pointed out that the tremendous numbers of married and unmarried women who watch the "Mr. Peepers" TV show every Sunday night find in Wally Cox the epitome of eligible masculinity.

"The man who uses his fists before he uses his brain," she added, "usually doesn't date too heavily on the intelligence side. Meekness shows integrity and intelligence. You know the saying about a placid lake running deep."

The Peepers show, which began as a summer replacement, was quickly held over as a regular when the network was deluged with thousands of letters from women viewers.

"Women are realistic," the stenographer said. "Life with a human dynamo would be too hectic for most of us. We might like to watch wrestlers crash one another, but it would be terribly wearing to marry one. A meek man is constant, dependable and certain not to have a roving eye—mostly because he doesn't believe in his own potentials."

Wally Cox, who frequently is described as being Mr. Peepers on the television screen, has a viewing audience of more than 35,000,000 with most of his fans belonging to the so-called weaker sex, she said.

"This is still a man's world," Miss Connelly said. "The only thing that can instill a woman with sufficient self-confidence is to know that the man she loves needs a mother as much as he needs a wife."

"The proof of this is that there are more white collar workers and professional men who marry at an early age than there are athletes who wed under 30."

Miss Connelly said there was no need for Wally Cox to get married—not as long as his fan mail contains a larger percentage of marriage proposals than the late Rudolph Valentino ever got.

"The whole darn country wants to mother him," she said. "It would be horrible if he just settled for one girl."

ment that their appointment was questioned by the Senate and some were refused confirmation.

If the last administration was deceived or fooled, what explanation can be made of the persistent attitude of our leading Democrats today who keep sniping away at those members of the Senate and House who helped to expose Communist activities inside our government.

If the Democratic as a whole is ever to regain the confidence of the public which it lost on the anti-Communist issue in the last Presidential election, it must show more zeal in Congress than it has shown lately inferring out Communist agents and influence in America. It will not suffice to try to smear Senator McCarthy.

We had better watch our hands of Harry Truman. He is himself into this mess by being blind to the help he was giving Russia by his laxity in making appointments and he has been proven guilty beyond the shadow of a doubt. The leaders of our party will do well to not try to hold up his hands by yelling "witch hunts" "hysteria" and "an age of fear."

Just remember 1952.

Yours truly,

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

CHARLOTTE dropped down on Mario's desk. Why now was her heart in such a fright? "Somebody better give the minutes of this meeting," she said, "so I'll understand these veiled and subtle infernoes."

Tim touched his tie, pushed back his cuffs and cleared his throat. A marvelous mimicry of King, it might have been amusing—except that it all too evidently wasn't.

"Quote," Tim began, "I've been receiving threatening letters. Does that surprise you? No, I see it doesn't. I see the remarkable grapevine has been at work. Now as anyone at all cognizant of psychology is aware, threatening notes are the product of a psychotic and to be discounted as such. They give a little person a false feeling of power, under the impression that he or she, the inferior one, is victimizing the one feared and hated. While these notes are hardly pleasant reading, they're not to be taken seriously. I merely wanted to learn who was sending them. Now I know. And as I thought, the individual was, of course, not dangerous. The whole thing was rather pathetic. And I think this announcement will put an end to the matter."

"Unquote," Tim paused. "Thus spake Zarathustra."

Charlotte felt that everyone around her seemed to be looking at her. "Well, who was it, did he say?" She made her voice breathless.

"Everybody suspects everybody," Eric said.

"Maybe he doesn't know at all," Charlotte said. "Maybe he just did that to breathe fear into whoever's back at it." She didn't dare look at Velora's face.

"What was the threat though?" Tim asked. "That's the sixty-four dollar question. What's our beloved boss got in his past?"

"Women," Norma said. "Charlotte is a femme fatale. So now he takes it all out on us." Norma had never sounded so belligerent, and her pretty face was bitter.

"Why, what else happened?" Charlotte pursued.

"His Highness said," Norma went on, "that this sort of poisonous stuff, of course, contagious, so the innocent must suffer with the guilty, and..."

"So," Dorothy took it up, "point one, there will be no dates between members of the advertising staff." She watched Charlotte, who began to draw cats on Mario's layout pad.

"Point two," Dorothy continued, "all desks are subject to inspection without warning. Three, lunch hours are to be staggered, from eleven-thirty to two. Not more than two of us may leave at one time. And last, after today there will be no personal telephone calls, incoming or outgoing. This is a business office, he said."

"Believe it or not," Tim put in, "business!"

"He has his reasons," Dorothy challenged.

"Then about the jewelry," Velora said. "Mr. Cummings said some jewelry was taken from the main floor last week, and it's still not known whether it was an inside job or a kleptomaniac."

Charlotte's heart lurched, and she drew in the cats' whiskers with exaggerated care.

The thick silence hung like a fog.

"What's the connection?" Charlotte asked at last.

"Who says there has to be a connection?" It was Tim. "But don't think for a minute you've heard everything yet. He must still be up nights devising new forms of torture. Here's the final blow. There will be a couple of personnel changes, he said. In this office, just to start the new year right. The last remark is my own."

"I know it's me, going to be fired," Norma said. "I never kidded myself I was great shakes as a copywriter. I hope it is me; then I'll be free of that fend."

"You're both wrong," Tim said. "The most interesting people in the broad line."

"You're both wrong," Mario appeared suddenly. "It's me. I'm fired."

"Yes, me. The low-down skunk, the things he said," Mario looked around as though he weren't seeing a thing. Then he sat down and dropped his face in his hands. Charlotte's thoughts were wild birds, scattered by the shot of a gun. They were like racing clouds, lattered and torn by the wind.

"Now wait a minute, somewhere there's a meaning. A jewelry theft. Mario fired, and someone else may be, he hinted. Not me, he wouldn't fire me; no such luck. Or would he? Was that the next mysterious move, his wonders to perform?"

Velora's buzzer sounded peremptorily. When she came out of Mr. Cummings' office, she started toward Charlotte. She stood beside her, shoulders sagging.

"Mr. Cummings wants to see you," she told Charlotte in a dead voice.

As Charlotte started down the aisle, she heard Norma call out to Velora. "Oh, Velora dear, did you find your lost letter?"

"Yes," Velora said. "Yes, I located it."

Charlotte crossed the carpet and stood before King's desk, while he went on reading a report. Her right hand opened and closed spasmodically. She shut it, making a tight fist. This is where I came in, she thought. And for a minute it was a year ago, and she was back at the beginning. Only there was never any going back to the beginning.

So now it was the end. This time, she felt, was almost the inevitable end.

King looked up and smiled. "Good morning, Charlotte. Sit down, do." He offered her a cigarette.

Charlotte shook her head. "No thanks, as you thought, I'm not smoking any peace pipe with you, Big Chief." Today he had turned on the charm. It was one of the buttons he pushed. Watch out for him when he pushes the charm button. She clenched her teeth the way one did when the dentist said, "Bite."

"I'm sorry you missed the meeting," he said. "I particularly wanted you there."

Charlotte sat mute. It's going to be good, she thought; whatever it is, it's good; he's so pleased with himself.

He cleared his throat and pushed back his cuffs. "As of January first," he said, "you will be Delia's new Advertising Manager. Your salary will be increased proportionately, of course."

In spite of herself Charlotte started. Her mind raced, trying to keep ahead of him. With caution she looked for the catch that would spring the trap.

He sat blowing smoke rings, waiting for her to think it through. Take your time, his manner indicated. I know you'll have to seem to weigh this, but I weighted the scales first. You can't refuse. But take your time.

"I always promised I'd help you to the big time," he said.

The realization of her ambitions, money, lovely money—that's how he thought to tempt her. But what was the game? What's he getting out of it? Charlotte asked herself.

Well, it would be a tightening of the leash.

And it would amuse him to have Eric hear underling, working for her.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1953

"McCARTHYISM" AND "TRUMANISM"

Senator Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin may not
have had as large an audience over a combined radio-
television network this week as former President Harry
S. Truman had a week ago, but it was probably nearly
as large.

Many Americans wanted to hear what he had to say
about the new dictionary word Truman introduced—
"McCarthyism"—but we believe most of them were astonished to learn where it originated.

Truman defined the word as "corruption of truth, the
abandonment of due process of law, the use of the
big lie."

Senator McCarthy said last night the definition was
not originated by Truman. "It was first printed in the Daily Worker, New York Communist newspaper, and McCarthy said Truman used the Daily Worker definition, 'word for word, comma for comma.'"

Millions of Americans who do not admire McCarthy
will probably readily admit since seeing him on television, or hearing him on radio, that they believe in
what he stands for. And some will confess they have been too liberal in their attitude towards Communists, or national leaders who have been "blind" so long as to
threat to our security.

We should never forget that when Truman so suddenly became President we were trying our dead level best
to carry on a tight partnership with Soviet Russia. He did not form the partnership. He was merely trying to carry on where the late Franklin D. Roosevelt left off.

Since the partnership has proven such a monumental
mistake all of us have leaned over backward to keep
from placing the blame where it properly belongs. Because Roosevelt is dead and Truman is still alive we are
inclined to blame Truman and excuse Roosevelt.

McCarthy says, and we think most folks believe, Truman was really "blind" to the risk involved when he promoted Harry Dexter White to a high office, but we would not forget that he "inherited" White, and all the
other alleged Russian spies mentioned in FBI reports,
and most of the 1,500 fired by Eisenhower since last
January as loyalty risks.

We have more respect for President Eisenhower than
ever for wanting to "clean up the Washington mess" as
quietly as possible, but we can't help but agree with McCarthy in his determined effort to inform the public
on Communist infiltration in government during the Truman Administration. It's the only way to avoid repetition of past mistakes.

Also we quite agree with the Wisconsin Senator when
he says Communist infiltration in government during the Truman administration will be the Number One issue in
the 1954 Congressional campaigns, regardless of how
badly President Eisenhower wants it to be a closed chapter in our history before then, and regardless of how loudly Adlai Stevenson denounces the issue as "waving
the red flag."

The defeated candidate introduced the "red flag" slogan in Atlanta and if McCarthy, and other radical Republicans, are as good at politics as Stevenson and Truman they will make that slogan react next year like
Truman's "red herring" reacted last fall.

TODAY'S SPORTS PARADE

By OSCAR FRALEY

United Press Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 28. (U.P.)

It is truly an all-American game

as Army and Navy go at it today

in Municipal Stadium but this

annual football classic really be-

longes in Pennsylvania. New York is second with 12 and California is third with 9—but little old New

Jersey, just across the Delaware

River, has 8 sons in the fray.

Army is a 1-point favorite, according to the boys in the back

room, but you can't sell that sort

of point propaganda at West Point

or Annapolis. This is the kind of

a game which breeds the spirit

seen from Bunker Hill to Inchon

or from the days of the Bon Hom-

me Richard to the Coral Sea.

Navy always seems to get "up"

higher than Army for this one.

Proof of that is the games of 1949

and 1950. In the first, unbeaten

Army was held to a 21-21 tie with

Navy on the Army 2-yard line as

the battle ended. In the second,

unbeaten Army was flattened by the Midties, 14-2.

"The reason, I think," says Col.

Jim Schwank, Army graduate

manager of athletics, "is that

Navy starts getting ready for us

in August."

Today's game is the 34th in a series that began in 1870. Army

has won 27 and Navy has taken

22. Four battles have ended in

ties.

Navy guard Steve Eisenhauer

has been getting most of the attention in the Navy line but, according to Army scouts, the running
heroes are Jack Ma Perkins, a tackle from Layton, Utah, and tackle Hugh Webster of Bremerton Wash.On the other hand, in the Army line most of the raves have been for center Bob Mischak while Navy
scouts say that the best man probably is center Bob Farris, a 200-
pound 6-footer from Montgomery,
Ala.Carney Leslie, who coaches the Army line for Cadet Head Coach
Earl Red Blaik, probably finds
himself a man divided as time approaches for the kickoff. During World War II the former university of Kentucky line coach, was a lieutenant commander in the Navy.And if you don't think the
coaches are upset as this game

gets underway, consider the case

of Army backfield coach, Vincent

Lombardi. End Coach Paul Amen

drove him home from practice one

night early during the weekend,

when Amen stopped his car in

front of Lombardi's quarters.

Vince leaned over and abstractedly

kissed Amen on the cheek.

"What goes on here?" asked the

startled Amen.

"Excuse me," blurted the red-

faced Lombardi. "I thought you

were my wife!"

Who's excited?

UPSLANT OF PRICES SINCE '46

UPWARD SLANT of prices from March 1946 to August 1953 according to figures of the Industrial Conference board of New York is illustrated in this picture-chart. It was made from price averages of four basic commodities in the board's 39-city consumer index for moderate income families. Figure 100 is 1939 price base.
